Meaning and Importance

- Recruitment and selection are vital HR functions ensuring the right people are hired for the right jobs.
- They support strategic goals and improve organizational performance.

Objectives

- Attract suitable candidates
- Reduce turnover
- Build a skilled and motivated workforce

Recruitment: Concept and Process

- Recruitment involves identifying needs, attracting candidates, and selecting suitable applicants.
- It links closely to workforce planning.

Types of Recruitment

- Internal recruitment
- External recruitment
- Campus recruitment
- E-recruitment

Internal Recruitment

- Methods: promotions, transfers, internal job postings
- Best for morale and cost efficiency.

External Recruitment

- Methods: advertisements, agencies, job portals, campus drives
- Best for bringing new skills and diversity.

Costs of Internal Recruitment

- • Limited talent pool
- • Possible internal conflict
- • Training and adjustment costs

Benefits of Internal Recruitment

- Low cost
- Motivation and loyalty
- Faster integration

Costs of External Recruitment

- High cost and time
- Cultural misfit risk
- Longer adaptation period

Benefits of External Recruitment

- Fresh ideas
- Larger talent pool
- Promotes diversity

Selection

- Selection identifies and hires candidates who best match job requirements through structured assessment.

Selection Process

1. Preliminary screening
2. Application form
3. Tests
4. Interviews
5. Reference checks
6. Job offer

Application Forms

- Advantages: uniform data
- Disadvantages: limited qualitative insights

Curriculum Vitae (CV)

- Advantages: detailed background
- Disadvantages: may contain exaggeration

Interviews

- Types: structured, unstructured, panel
- Pros: insight into personality
- Cons: subjective bias possible

Testing

- Types: aptitude, skills, psychometric, personality
- Benefits: objective evaluation of candidates

Selection Methods Comparison

Selection Method	Cost	Accuracy / Reliability	Time Required	Comments
Application Forms	Low – inexpensive to design and distribute	Moderate – provides standardized information but limited depth	Short – quick to screen large numbers	Useful for initial screening; easy to compare applicants.
Curriculum Vitae (CVs)	Low to Moderate – minimal cost except for screening time	Low to Moderate – candidates may exaggerate; lacks standardization	Moderate – takes time to read and analyze	Good for understanding career progression, but subjective.
Interviews	Moderate to High – requires interviewer time and possibly panel setup	Moderate to High (if structured) / Low (if unstructured)	High – time-consuming per candidate	Allows assessment of communication and personality; bias possible.
Tests (Aptitude / Psychometric / Skills)	Moderate to High – depends on test design and administration	High – provides objective and reliable data on ability and fit	Moderate – depends on number of tests and scoring time	Enhances prediction of job performance; may need expert validation.

Best Practices

Aspect	Best Practices	Benefits
Use of AI & Technology	• Utilize AI-driven screening tools to analyze CVs and application forms.• Use online assessments to evaluate skills objectively.• Apply data analytics to predict candidate success.	• Saves time and reduces human bias.• Enables consistent and data-backed decisions.
Structured Formats	• Use structured interviews with standardized questions and scoring rubrics.• Employ validated test formats aligned to job requirements.• Maintain uniform criteria for all candidates.	• Improves reliability and fairness.• Enhances comparison between applicants.
Legal Compliance	• Follow equal opportunity and anti-discrimination laws.• Keep transparent documentation of selection decisions.• Ensure data privacy under labour and data protection acts.	• Reduces legal risks and protects organizational reputation.
Ethical Standards	• Avoid intrusive or irrelevant personal questions.• Obtain informed consent for assessments.• Maintain confidentiality of candidate data and results.	• Builds trust and supports responsible hiring culture.
